

In 1969, 50 years ago, Peter L. Reichertz became Professor at Hannover Medical School (MHH). Professor Reichertz is one of the most significant pioneers in the field of medical informatics worldwide. This symposium in his honour will not just look back to the beginnings of medical informatics at MHH and TU Braunschweig. It will also reflect on questions arising, and lessons learned since then for medical informatics research, education and practice of today.

About the Speakers at the 2019 Peter L. Reichertz Symposium

Professor Rolf Engelbrecht and Professor Otto Rienhoff began their careers as research associates of Prof. Reichertz. Otto Rienhoff became Professor of Medical Informatics at the Universities of Marburg and Göttingen. He served as President of GMDS and President of the International Medical Informatics Association (IMIA). Professor Engelbrecht became Director at the MEDIS-Institute for Medical Informatics and Systems Research in Munich. He served as President of the European Federation for Medical Informatics (EFMI).

Professor Wolfgang Kilian is Professor emeritus at the Institute for Legal Informatics of the Leibniz University Hannover. As an expert on data privacy, Prof. Kilian collaborated with Prof. Reichertz in the 1970s and 1980s.

Thomas Deserno, Reinhold Haux and Michael Marschollek are Professors of Medical Informatics at the Peter L. Reichertz Institute for Medical Informatics of TU Braunschweig and Hannover Medical School, where Joana Warnecke is a research associate. Michael Marschollek is Director of the Hannover Campus, and currently Executive Director of PLRI. Thomas Deserno is Director of the Braunschweig Campus of PLRI. Reinhold Haux has served as President of IMIA and is currently President of the International Academy of Health Sciences Informatics (IAHSI).
